This past year has been historic for the Sheriff’s Department. On January 7, 2014, Sheriff Lee Baca suddenly resigned amid controversy over abuses in the jails and obstruction of justice allegations by the federal government. His sudden departure opened the door for many who desired to lead the Sheriff’s Department, including Long Beach Police Chief Jim McDonnell, former Undersheriff Paul Tanaka, Assistant Sheriffs Todd Rogers and Jim Hellmold, formerly ousted PPOA President Patrick Gomez and LAPD Detective Lou Vince. The race turned into a blowout and McDonnell was elected the 32nd Sheriff of Los Angeles County. For the first time in more than a century, an outsider will take over the helm of the largest sheriff’s department in the world.

On January 30, 2014, John Scott was appointed as the interim Sheriff of Los Angeles County to serve the remainder of the year until a new Sheriff could be elected. John retired from the Sheriff’s Department in 2005 after serving 36 years, and took a job as Undersheriff of the Orange County Sheriff’s Department to help former LASD Chief Sandra Hutchens rebuild that department following scandal. Scott was not just a placeholder, and he made significant changes when he took over as the Sheriff of Los Angeles. On the next page, I have decided to grade the successes and failures of the Sheriff’s Department over this past year, under the leadership of John Scott, so our members can understand how far we came in just a few months and how far we still need to go to restore this Department’s reputation.

Continuing the trend of the past several years, 2014 saw a corrosive divide among Sheriff’s Department employees and PPOA members as Tanaka supporters battled Tanaka detractors. This internal battle grew as Tanaka attempted to take a run at becoming the next Sheriff. PPOA became a target due to its leadership and its political influence, particularly in the Los Angeles County Sheriff race. PPOA’s Board and membership united and stood strong in protecting its integrity against those who wanted to use PPOA for personal gain. In the end, PPOA maintained its integrity and was able to protect its mission: to defend the rights of all members, not just a select few.

Later in the year, seven members of the Sheriff’s Department were convicted and sentenced to prison for their role in obstructing justice in an FBI probe into excessive force in the Los Angeles County jails. Several deputies, sergeants and lieutenants received prison sentences ranging from 21 months to 41 months. PPOA was very outspoken about this issue, and I publicly stated that it was a “pissing match between two powerful law enforcement agencies.” This was nothing more than the FBI being upset with LASD for interfering with their investigation, and the LASD being upset with the FBI for secretly smuggling a cellphone into the jail to a hardcore criminal, placing the lives of deputies and inmates at risk. It is sad to see the lives of our peers and their families ruined over a pissing match.

Regardless of their guilt or innocence, these fellow employees and their families are facing difficult times financially. Many are struggling to make mortgage payments and put food on the table to feed their children. With that in mind, PPOA established a Web page to help our members support any or all of the families affected. Please visit PPOA.com to lend a hand to those in need.

Now it is time to look to the future, rebuild the Sheriff’s Department and return it to the most respected law enforcement agency in the world. We have high expectations of Sheriff McDonnell, and we have faith in our members’ ability to focus on police work and restore the pride in this Department. PPOA will remain vigilant, regardless of who the Sheriff is, and fight to protect the rights of its members, develop fair and equitable treatment for all and help the Department rebuild its reputation.
LASD Report Card
The purpose of this report card is to provide an assessment of the effectiveness of the Sheriff’s Department for the past 12 months. Hopefully, it can be used by Sheriff’s management to reflect on their performance through the eyes of their employees.

Prior to 2014, the Sheriff’s Department was in severe disarray due to political corruption, pay-to-pay for promotions, cheating on exams, favoritism, nepotism and intimidation. These problems were not orchestrated at the line level, but were directed from the highest levels of Sheriff’s management. This year was about correcting some of the most egregious violations of conduct by these upper-management executives. It was about putting things in motion for long-term restoration of fairness and accountability. Did the Sheriff’s Department succeed in this mission? Let’s take a look at some of the categories of concern for PPOA members.

Immediately taking charge: When Sheriff Scott took office, he immediately made some changes that needed to be made. He eliminated the exclusivity of the “secret” patio used by Tanaka and his followers, and opened it up for use by everyone. This sent a message to the employees that we are all on the same team, the LASD team. No more secret, exclusive gatherings. He also immediately reached out to retirees and formed the Sheriff’s Cadre, a group of retired Department executives, to examine operations and to make recommendations for improvement.

Organizational changes: Sheriff Scott made some immediate changes to the organizational structure of the LASD. He brought back Neal Tyler as the executive officer, second in command. This was important because Sheriff Baca eliminated the undersheriff position during the controversy surrounding Undersheriff Tanaka. Sheriff Scott recognized that the problem was not the undersheriff position, but rather the person in that position. An undersheriff or executive officer is crucial to assisting in the smooth operation of the Department. We applaud Sheriff Scott for recognizing this. He also made adjustments in the executive ranks and moved several executives to new assignments. He recognized that some units had become dysfunctional due to favoritism and cliques, and needed new leadership to bring their focus back to their job functions. We understand the need to make these changes, but several good executives were also moved in the process. Although the moves may have been necessary, there appeared to be little concern about the impact these moves would have on the employees who were not problematic, and little consultation with or compassion for the employees before they were moved. Sheriff Scott said he “wanted to get the right person in the right positions.” We applaud that concept, but it could have been handled with more consideration for those affected by these decisions.

Promotions: Under the previous administration, promotions were often based on cheating, campaign contributions or simply being “in the car.” This corrupt and unethical system damaged morale more than any other single issue. When Sheriff Scott came in, he changed the selection process to involve the chiefs, instead of solely the undersheriff. Unfortunately, PPOA received many complaints about the “new and improved” process. Some said it was the same nepotistic process, but simply with more corrupt executives involved. We do applaud Sheriff Scott for changing the promotion process, but criteria were not put into place to hold the executives accountable for their selections. As a result, favoritism still existed. Each executive became an advocate for his or her “favorites,” and the group would make decisions without any real comparisons to other candidates — without knowledge of a candidate’s character or disciplinary record, or evidence of leadership. We recommend a minor change to make the process more objective and fair: Each executive should complete a standardized resume for all eligible candidates under his or her command, including examples of leadership, character and compassion, as well as job experience, knowledge and discipline. The executives should then bring their top candidates to the table, and every executive should receive copies of the resumes to compare against the other candidates and discuss. This process will reduce favoritism through transparency about the candidates’ qualifications, and will allow all the executives to properly compare candidates against one another. The employees just want a fair chance at promotion. If we are to heal from past transgressions, we need to develop a system that is fair to everyone.

Leadership: We have noticed a sharp change in the decision making of Department executives under Sheriff Scott’s leadership. In the past, executives were stymied and prevented from making decisions (or chose not to) without the direction and approval of a particularly high-ranking executive. Today, we see chiefs and commanders actively making decisions and coming up with ideas of their own. Some are good and some are not so good, but at least they are thinking for themselves. We would like to see that type of leadership encouraged down to the rank-and-file deputies and supervisors. We should all be encouraged to make our own decisions and then be held accountable for those decisions. Allow deputies to make decisions, allow sergeants to lead the deputies in the field, allow lieutenants to command their shifts and hold each and every one of them accountable for their decisions, good and bad.

John Scott has accomplished many great and necessary changes in his short tenure as Sheriff. We thank him for his leadership and the shot of integrity we needed in this Department. Not everything was perfect, and there is certainly room for improvement for Sheriff McDonnell. PPOA will continue to support the efforts to improve the Sheriff’s Department while protecting the rights of our members. We will work with the Sheriff’s Department to improve public safety, but not at the expense of placing the employees at risk. Together, we can make this a Department to be proud of — for the public and its employees.
The year was 1951. Men named Truman and Stalin were navigating postwar tensions that would eventually become known as the Cold War. But for cops in Los Angeles, there was another pressing issue that called for an off-duty meeting late that year. They were worried about their pensions. It wasn’t so much pension reform as it was threats to abolish their retirement system altogether. The concern became so serious that a group of deputy sheriffs, deputy marshals and district attorney investigators gathered at the Hall of Records for a serious discussion. They shared ideas about how to best protect their general welfare as peace officers, and decided the most important first step was to work as a team. It was at that meeting that this fledgling group of L.A. County employees shook hands and agreed to form the Los Angeles County Peace Officers Protective Association (POPA).

Monthly dues were $1 per month back then and they were initially collected in person by members of the Board. Board members often had the lone staff member (a female secretary) tag along while collecting dues in order to apply a little social pressure to the men who hesitated to part with a buck. The average monthly paycheck for a deputy sheriff in 1951 was $355, so standards were naturally different. In fact, according to recruitment literature used by the Sheriff’s Department at the time, deputy sheriff applicants were required to possess “no less than 16 natural teeth.”

Before long, POPA’s first office opened in Chinatown. The Board retained an attorney and provided each union member with false arrest insurance. POPA’s initial efforts centered on defending members’ rights, convincing the County to issue a pay increase and fighting the 1952 proposal to abolish all public employee retirement systems. In this sense, POPA’s most important responsibilities have remained unchanged over the last 60 years. The union’s perseverance has resulted in a much-expanded role: POPA (the acronym was altered slightly from “POPA” in 1978, but the original pronunciation has stuck) is now one of the most influential law enforcement associations in the nation. Few single-employer unions have as much impact locally and statewide as this one. In six decades of service, PPOA has accomplished much more than could be listed in this column. A few highlights include:

4850 Time
PPOA sponsored legislation in the 1960s to establish a key benefit for peace officers: paid time off for line-of-duty injuries.

Retirement Credit
PPOA’s efforts in 1972 resulted in a military buy-back program for L.A. County in which peace officers can make a retirement contribution for years in the military and get additional credited service for retirement.

Disability Coverage
In 1990, PPOA co-founded the Peace Officers Relief Fund (PORF), which provides 100 percent employer-paid, long-term disability income, as well as life insurance coverage.

Safety Equipment
Thanks to PPOA’s efforts over the years, peace officers no longer have to purchase their own firearms and safety equipment (e.g., vests); that all became standard issue by Los Angeles County.

Medical Presumptions
PPOA’s full-time legislative efforts have paid off handsomely over the last three decades, resulting in presumptions for cancer, blood-borne pathogens, heart disease, lower-back (duty belt) injuries, staph infections and more.

New Members
PPOA proudly enrolled 350 new members in 2014 (as of November 3), bringing total membership to 8,723. The state of your union is strong, and we are fully committed to forging ahead in 2015 as a leader among the nation’s most effective law enforcement associations.
The most crucial responsibility of a union is to protect its membership. When job-related situations arise, PPOA members wisely seek representation. Since January 2014, the PPOA staff has received thousands of calls from members for various reasons. More than 1,400 of those calls were forwarded to PPOA’s labor representation team. In the end, 441 of those calls became cases handled by our in-house labor representatives and/or attorneys. The rest were resolved informally by telephone, meetings, conflict resolution or correspondence.

Of the cases handled by the PPOA labor representation team:

» 57% were internal investigations
» 31% were grievances that either started out as such or became such as a result of the investigation
» 1% were civil service appeals
» 1% addressed contract enforcement issues
» 8% were internal criminal investigations

This year, the PPOA Board also authorized nearly $1.5 million in attorneys’ fees in order to represent members in civil service hearings and court proceedings. These figures confirm that representing law enforcement employees in one of the largest counties in the nation requires constant vigilance. There is no career as closely scrutinized as that of a public safety employee.

Our labor representatives and attorneys (PPOA works with no less than half a dozen specialized firms) are uniquely experienced and familiar with local, county, state and federal administrative agencies and the laws that govern all aspects of the workplace. This allows PPOA to provide skilled representation in every area of labor including, but not limited to:

» Arbitration
» Contract enforcement
» IAB investigations
» ICIB investigations
» Grievances
» Unit-level investigations
» Unfair labor practices
» Workplace issues

Lobbying for or against legislation is an absolutely crucial job for all relevant law enforcement associations. That is why PPOA’s vigilance in the halls of the California State Capitol dates back more than three decades. Without lobbying, the many interests of PPOA members (as law enforcement employees) would be lost in the process of lawmaking. For the last few years, the hot-button issue has been pension reform, but you can rest assured that PPOA’s legislative efforts extend well beyond protecting your benefits. Ryan Sherman, PPOA’s full-time lobbyist in Sacramento, is regularly involved in proposed changes to the various California codes such as the Penal Code, Civil Code, Labor Code, Government Code, Vehicle Code, Health and Safety Code, and Business and Professions Code. As PPOA reviews the various legislative proposals, we consider law enforcement labor issues, anything that might affect your health and welfare as you carry out your duties, and anything that would help you to be more effective as you protect the public. With that in mind, we have included below a review of some of the legislative proposals from the last session, in order to help you determine our degree of success.

The following is a partial list of bills introduced in the 2013-2014 legislative session that PPOA supported, opposed or had on the radar screen:

POA is represented by more than 200 delegates at work locations around the county. The role of the delegate is crucial in facilitating effective communication between the union’s Board, staff and membership. Topics ranging from contract negotiations to legislation to lawsuits are discussed at quarterly dinner meetings. These meetings are held midweek at locations throughout L.A. County. The first meeting of 2015 is scheduled for February 24 (location TBA).

In addition to meetings, delegates receive updates (via regular mail or email) from PPOA on issues affecting the membership. Delegates are asked to make this information accessible to their co-workers. PPOA also calls upon delegates when input is needed on classification-specific topics or when opportunities arise to serve on a committee or attend union-related events.

All active PPOA members are invited to become delegates. Remember that you are the union, and progress for your classification is deeply dependent on how active you are as a PPOA member and the steps you are willing to take to move things forward.

If you are interested in being an actively participating delegate, please contact Greg Torres at gtorres@ppoa.com.

The law enforcement community is often referred to as a family, and for good reason. We take care of our own and respect our brethren, whether we know them well or not at all. That’s exactly why PPOA established the Star & Shield Foundation (originally named the Professional Peace Officers Charitable Foundation) in 2001. Since then, the Foundation has proudly raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to support worthy organizations and causes. The most important of our missions is providing assistance to the families of fallen officers.

Spouses and children who suddenly find themselves forced to face life without the family provider often need more than financial assistance. In addition to delivering immediate funds to the survivors, our Foundation also helps navigate the pressing schedule of state-sponsored ceremonies honoring fallen officers. For years, the PPOA president has served as an escort for family members attending annual memorial ceremonies in Sacramento. Sometimes that means paying for airline tickets. Sometimes it means literally walking arm in arm with a grieving widow down the steps of the State Capitol building. Regardless of the duty, we plan to continue offering support and friendship to those in need.

The Foundation’s most significant fundraiser for the past eight years has been our annual Peace Officer Memorial Golf Tournament held each June. The first eight annual tournaments netted more than $350,000 for families of fallen officers. The upcoming tournament will be held on June 8, 2015, at Friendly Hills Country Club in Whittier. If you would like to support our Foundation as a tournament sponsor or volunteer, please call the PPOA office at (800) 747-PPOA.

More information about each of our 2015 events will be available in Star & Shield magazine, at www.ppoa.com, on Facebook and via email blasts.

All Foundation proceeds stem directly from fundraising, merchandise sales and the generosity of donors. PPOA merchandise includes an entire line of logo items (shirts, hats, jackets, mugs, etc.) displayed in the office lobby and online at www.poastore.com.

Statistics tell us that somewhere in the United States, a peace officer will die in the line of duty within the next 53 hours. It is as inevitable as it is tragic. It seems inconceivable that more than 20,000 names are engraved on the walls of the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial and yet, the countless grieving family members left behind each year remind us that we have a duty to memorialize the fallen and provide support to their loved ones. No state has laid to rest more officers than California, with 1,578 official deaths since records have been kept.

One of PPOA’s most honorable roles is to assist surviving family members of peace officers killed in the line of duty. The assistance is provided in a number of ways, from straight donations to sponsoring entire families as they attend memorial ceremonies in Sacramento and Washington, D.C. A list of the families of fallen officers supported by PPOA in 2014 is available on page 18.

PPOA’s Star & Shield Foundation is a prime example of this Association’s commitment to raise money and awareness for the families of fallen officers. Our Foundation currently hosts no less than three events annually to raise funds for the families in need. These include the Peace Officer Memorial Golf Tournament, Heroes Ride and Oktoberfest. If you would like to partner with us as a sponsor, participant or volunteer at any of these events, please call the PPOA office at (800) 747-PPOA.

Most importantly, PPOA extends heartfelt condolences to the families of the following peace officers killed in the line of duty in California in 2014 (as of mid-November):
